

Historical Articles | Home | Historian's articles | Picture Galleries | Pic of the Week | Forum | WFL | Contact us

Search for:

Advanced Search

Showing postings 1 - 4 of 4 in the thread: Homer and Irene's.

Posting: Homer and Irene's Poster: William Brainard Date: 13 January 2007 9:53 AM	Posting 1
Before Butch Ives had his antique shop on Route 6 past the airport, it was known as Homer and Irene's. Anyone remember this? It has to go back to the 1950s and early '60s.
Posting: Re: Homer and Irene's Poster: John Tormey Date: 13 January 2007 1:42 PM	Posting 2
I remember Al's & Irene's in that area. jt
Posting: Re: Homer and Irene's Poster: Francis Sellars Date: 15 January 2007 4:42 PM	Posting 3
John Tormey, Al's& Irene's was a grat place. On Sat. & Sun the place was always jammed. They had the best french fries all hand made there. A great place to dance,have a couple orders of fries and pitchers of cold beer. No place like that around anymore. An unforgettable place indeed.
Posting: Re: Homer and Irene's Poster: r d Date: 17 January 2007 1:17 PM	Posting 4
I remember A's & I's as a fun place to go to drink pitchers of beer and dance. One night the State Police had undercover agents sitting around watching was going on and then all of sudden jumped and showed their badges. Uniformed SPs had arrived and blocked the door. Some girls went to the bathroom and tried to go out the window. Another place that was fun to go to was the Log Cabin in Lebanon. Had to bring your own but no one asked questions just sold you the setups.	